“ The fact that we are chronically, seriously ill or have a disability is irrelevant. In the moment that we are laughing and chatting, for a moment, we are just like every other teenager. ”

keeping it real

- ★ Teens thrive on social interaction and peer support. Being seriously ill, having a chronic illness or disability can leave young people feeling isolated and disconnected from their friends.
- ★ Powered by the Starlight Children's Foundation, Livewire.org.au connects teens living with a serious illness, chronic health condition or disability, and their siblings.
- ★ Livewire gives teenagers a place that's just for them; where they can connect with others who just 'get' what they're going through.
- ★ It's a fun and supportive place where they can chat, share stories, get creative and just be!

“ Livewire has given me a chance to feel “normal”. It is the only thing that has actually ever made me feel normal. I don't think there is a better group to be a part of. ”

Why Livewire?

- ★ The Livewire community helps adolescents living with a serious illness, chronic health condition or disability feel connected, supported and more positive about their future.
- ★ Livewire is delivered by trained Livewire chat hosts, who create opportunities for teenagers to connect and engage in activities – whether that means introducing them to a new activity, or simply having a chat.

“ I love being part of Livewire because the community is so tight knit! It has heaps of awesome blogs to read! I love it because I can finally talk to people who understand what I am going through without blank faces staring back at me! ”
